BE A UI STAR IN THE LONE STAR STATE

June 27, 2018

On behalf of the National Foundation for Unemployment Compensation and Workers' Compensation, permit me to extend a warm welcome to the 37th Annual National UI Issues Conference.

Thanks to UWC members and conference participants for their outstanding contributions in research, public policy advocacy, and promoting integrity and the ongoing health of the UI system, and specifically:

- For the significant time and effort of the many experts with us here today, who put forth their analyses and recommendations on the key issues facing UI stakeholders;
- For the UI Topics Task Force, which developed an agenda reflecting both longstanding and new challenges;
- For the active participation from state and federal public officials.

As the only national association specifically representing the interests of the business community on unemployment insurance (UI) issues, UWC serves a foundational role in protecting and enhancing the UI program. This conference has become a critical annual event in the ongoing evolution of the UI system, by promoting productive dialogue between the stakeholders and highlighting administrative best practices, integrity, reemployment and long term solvency of the program.

The Foundation is proud to serve as host, and is committed to continuing both the annual conference and our efforts to provide research and forums for dialogue in support of the UI program.

Again, welcome, and thank you for your interest and participation. Enjoy your time in Austin!

Thomas P. Crowley
Chairman, Board of Trustees

Jim Van Erden, Senior Policy Advisor, National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA)

The workshop is designed to provide individuals who are new to unemployment insurance with a basic understanding of the federal/state unemployment insurance system; who pays, who benefits, what is the federal and state balance and how is the program administered? The workshop also serves as a refresher to UI professionals in advance of the broader conference agenda.

1:15 pm – 2:15 pm
Capitol Ballroom E – H

Jim Dolmas, Senior Policy Advisor and Economist, Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas

The presenter will review the state of the economy with particular reference to its impact on employment and unemployment. National Unemployment Insurance Program Update

2:15 pm – 3:15 pm

Capitol Ballroom E – H

Gay Gilbert, Administrator, Office of Unemployment Insurance, Employment, and Training Administration, U.S. Department of Labor

The Federal/State Unemployment Insurance program is experiencing very low claims workload, although there have been increases in disaster assistance in Texas, Florida and other states. State unemployment trust funds have significantly recovered although the trust fund balances in some states remain below levels recommended by US DOL for solvency. Ms. Gilbert will review the federal and state responses to recent disasters and the status of the Unemployment Insurance program from a national perspective.

National Unemployment Insurance Legislative Update

3:30 pm – 4:30 pm

Capitol Ballroom E – H

Doug Holmes, President, UWC – Strategic Services on Unemployment & Workers' Compensation

As the economy has improved and unemployment rates have trended down, legislative activity has begun to focus on long term program improvements and to prepare for the next recession. Mr. Holmes will review federal and state legislative enactments and initiatives of significance in 2017, and legislation currently being considered, as well as issues arising from new federal budget proposals and implementation of legislation enacted in recent years to address integrity, drug testing, unemployment trust fund solvency, and the delivery of workforce services for claimants and employers.

Doug Holmes, President, National Foundation for UC and WC (Moderator)

Larry Temple, Executive Director, Texas Workforce Commission

Maurice Emsellem, Program Director, Fair Chance Team, National Employment Law Project

Jim Keffer, Texas Association of Business

There are competing visions of the role of the UI system. Is it the front door to a broad range of entitlement benefits and services for individuals who are not employed? Paid Family leave? Is it a narrowly defined insurance system? Who should pay for the system? What should be the federal and state roles in the UI system? Should there be any change from the system as it was initially designed in 1935 and modified in the decades since? What are the impacts of different visions on employers, employees and states?

Paid Family and Sick Leave: The California Experience and a Federal Framework

8:30 am – 9:30 am

Capitol Ballroom E – H

Marti Fisher, Policy Advocate, California Chamber of Commerce

Mike Aitken, Vice President, Government Affairs, Society for Human Resource Management

Paid Family Leave and paid sick leave have continued to be an issue as employees try to meet their work and family responsibilities. While many employers voluntarily offer various types of paid leave, some employers, particularly small business, cannot afford to provide paid leave to their employees. In this environment, four states have enacted paid family programs and 10 states now require employers to provide paid sick leave while still other states consider adopting similar paid leave requirements. The lack of consistent state and local policies across the nation have led to employer confusion and administrative burdens. In a tight labor market, employers seek ways to provide benefits to attract and retain workers. President Trump included a provision to pay for parental leave through the UI system as part of the FY 2018 and 2019 budget proposals and there continues to be interest in some additional federal response to this issue. In this session, you will hear about two different approaches - the California experience with state mandated family and sick leave policies, and a legislative proposal in Congress, sponsored by Representative Mimi Walters (R-CA), that allows employers that choose to offer a minimum threshold of paid leave and a flexible work option to all employees to automatically satisfy all state and local paid leave requirements.

What is the Drug Testing Law? How does pre-and post-employment drug testing work? Who does it? How is it done? How can it work in UI administration?

10:50 am – 11:50 am

Capitol Ballroom E

Tony Fiore, Attorney, Kegler Brown Hill + Ritter

Bruce Jefferies, President/CEO, National Screening Center, LLC

There has been considerable debate since the enactment of specific authority enabling states to drug test UI applicants about the circumstances under which testing would be appropriate, who would perform the tests and the effect on the eligibility of UI applicants as they filed continued claims. Many employers and agencies include drug testing as part of their normal operating procedure. This workshop offers a review of the current law, how drug testing is done and suggestions as to how it could be effective in assuring that individuals are able and available to work and prepared to effectively seek reemployment.

UI Claims Appeal Mock Hearing Workshop

10:50 am – 11:50 am

Capitol Ballroom F - H

Lori Roberts, Billy Rudnick, Joe Fogarty, Amy Scola, Equifax

Jennifer Howell, Staffmark

Hugh Daniel, Hearing Officer, Texas Workforce Commission

UI administrative appeals provide for on the record hearings to determine whether a claimant may be disqualified from unemployment compensation. The hearings require specialized knowledge of hearing procedures, an understanding of evidentiary rules, presentation of evidence, witness testimony, and the UI law in each state. This workshop will present a view into the details of a UI hearing and the issues typically addressed. Panel presenters will conduct a “mock hearing” with the results to be determined.

Tom Byerley, Operations Director, State information Data Exchange System, National Association of State Workforce Agencies

Timothy Rush, Director of Reemployment Assistance, Mississippi Department of Employment Security

Ofer Eckstein, Partner – IT & Operations, Personnel Planners, Inc.

The administration of unemployment insurance has become increasingly automated, with the implementation of SIDES and state automated systems that impact administrative costs as well as employers and claimants. The panel will review the impact of SIDES implementation and multi-state and state automated systems projects on employers and their representatives.

Roundtable Discussion of Individual State UI Law and Policy Issues

Capitol Ballroom F – H

Tony Fiore, Attorney at Law, Kegler Hill Brown + Ritter

Thomas D. Chan, Assistant Legal Counsel, Illinois Department of Employment Security

Justin McFarland, General Counsel, Kansas Department of Labor

State legislatures in many states have taken significant steps to reform state UI law and administration and adjusted unemployment tax and benefit provisions to address solvency. This roundtable provides a forum to review the most recent state legislative and administrative changes. As states often serve as laboratories of innovation, changes implemented locally often may be the source of ideas for other states or for federal legislation. The roundtable of state and employer representatives will review significant state law and policy changes with participation from the workshop attendees.

Review of FUTA and SUTA Tax Status and Projections

Capitol Ballroom E

Ron Wilus, Chief, Division of Fiscal and Actuarial Services, Office of Unemployment Insurance, Employment and Training Administration, US DOL

Steve Carter, Assistant Director, Government Relations Tax, Equifax Workforce Solutions

A key part of budgeting for an employer is projecting costs, including the cost of unemployment insurance for the coming budget period. US DOL prepares a UI Outlook updated twice a year that is used to project FUTA rates and revenue for the federal ten year budget period. Employers engage tax analysts and actuaries to project tax rates and costs for individual employers. What methodologies are used? What are the projections for FUTA and SUTA for the coming year?

The Debate about Expanded Quarterly Wage Reports to Include Occupation Information

3:45 pm – 5:00 pm

Capitol Ballroom F – H

Thomas P. Crowley, Director, Government Affairs – UI, Automatic Data Processing

Bruce Madson, Assistant Director, Ohio Department of Job and Family Services

There is an ongoing debate about the value of requiring employers to report occupation information as part of the UI quarterly wage reports. The quarterly UI wage report is not only used in performance evaluation for WIOA, but also has value in evaluating whether the education and training has value in filling the workforce needs of employers and enabling individuals to be assured that the education and training in which they enroll prepares them for jobs in demand. Some employers already participate in voluntary networks that are used to evaluate education and training as part of the hiring process. However, there is currently no nationwide source of uniform occupational data on all employees that may be accessed. Although some employers see value in a nationwide data base that includes uniform occupation information data, employers are generally not prepared to meet the added burden of determining occupational codes for every employee and submitting that information on a quarterly basis. The cost/benefit to most employers is not favorable. Still a number of states have required the reporting of occupation with UI quarterly reports. What have been the results of these state requirements on employers, state agencies, and on the availability of accurate and reliable occupation information?

The integrity of the Federal/State UI system has come under increased scrutiny because of state unemployment trust fund insolvency, high improper payment rates, fraud and scarce resources to address integrity issues. USDOL, individual states and employers have responded with improved systems to identify and avoid improper payments and fraud. NASWA, in partnership with USDOL, created the UI Integrity Center to work with states to find and support solutions to detect and reduce fraud and improper payments. This panel will review the latest innovations and tools being developed by the Center to address integrity.

Reemployment Eligibility Assessments and Reemployment Services – Innovations

10:15 am – 11:45 am

Capitol Ballroom F-H

Brett Flachsbarth, Director of Unemployment Insurance, Kansas Department of Labor

Maurice Emsellem, National Employment Law Project

There is broad support among the primary stakeholders in the UI system for expanded efforts to provide eligibility assessments and reemployment services of unemployment claimants. REA/RES has been shown to reduce the duration of unemployment and can provide a faster and better connection between UI claimants and employers who are in need of workers. In this workshop we will review the best practices in REA/RES administration, discuss the availability of additional funds, and consider the potential targets for the use of these funds. (Automation, in person eligibility reviews, assessment, counseling, referral, and performance measurement).

Unemployment Compensation in the Broader Employment Law Context

10:15 am – 11:45

Capitol Ballroom E

Elsa G. Ramos, Legal Counsel to Commissioner Ruth R. Hughs

William T. (Tommy) Simmons, Legal Counsel to Commissioner Ruth R. Hughs

This workshop will provide a detailed look at how unemployment claims impact and are impacted by other important state and federal employment laws. Participants will study how an employer's compliance with discrimination, employee relations, and wage and hour laws can directly and indirectly affect the outcome in an unemployment claim. The speaker will touch upon advanced topics, such as how to bring official documentation from agencies concerned with other laws into evidence for an unemployment claim, what to do if you find out that the claimant has an attorney and will file more serious claims or litigation against the employer, how testimony can turn into pitfalls, and much more.

J. ELDRED HILL, JR. AWARD: GAY M. GILBERT

Gay Gilbert is among a very small number of individuals in the history of the UI Program to have had a profound impact on Unemployment Insurance in the United States. From her days as a UI Director and Deputy Administrator in Ohio to her career as US DOL Senior Executive Staff, Administrator of the Office of Workforce Investment, and Administrator of the Office of Unemployment Insurance, Gay has been the consummate professional in addressing the most difficult issues facing Unemployment Insurance and finding solutions.

Early in her career Gay lead the way in development of meaningful Unemployment Insurance program evaluation metrics, and in her role at the US Department of Labor she has demonstrated the commitment to continuous improvement to assure that the Unemployment Insurance system meets the needs of unemployed workers and connects them with employers.

Gay successfully advocated for improved and expanded Reemployment Services and Reemployment and Eligibility Assessments that have become a primary focus of the UI program.

Gay was a driving force in the development of the State Information Data Exchange System that is now the platform through which information is exchanged in the determination of unemployment compensation across the country. Determinations are rendered more quickly and more accurately to the benefit of unemployed workers and employers in large measure because of the work of Gay Gilbert.

In the area of program integrity, Gay was among the first to recognize that with increased automation and access through the internet there would be increased stress on the integrity of benefit payments and the threat of identity theft would be significant. Working with NASWA and the Office of Inspector General, Gay lead the development of the Integrity Center and initiatives to identify fraud and identity theft early and to avoid erroneous payments that would otherwise be charged to employer accounts.

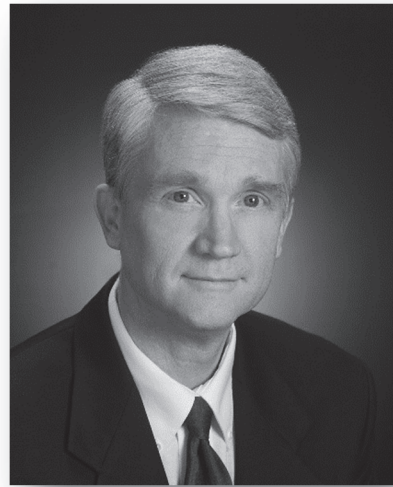

Gay Gilbert led US DOL in coordinating the administrative response to dramatically increased unemployment in the Great Recession of 2008 and the seemingly endless changes in statutory requirements.

Gay's list of positions of responsibility for the Unemployment Insurance program alone would be worthy of recognition, but it is her personal integrity, strength of character, dedication and commitment that really set her apart as deserving of highest recognition. We in the unemployment insurance system have been fortunate to have had Gay Gilbert as a leader of the UI Program. It is our honor to present Gay Gilbert with the J. Eldred Hill Award for excellence in the public policy arena and in service to the employer community.

J. ELDRED HILL, JR. AWARD: WILLIAM T. (TOMMY) SIMMONS

For over 30 years, Mr. Simmons has served as an incredible champion for employers in his role as Senior Legal Counsel to the employer commissioner. In that time, he has given more than 2,000 presentations to employer groups in many different venues, including monthly Texas Business Conferences (TBC) held throughout the state. Mr. Simmons' institutional experience and profound knowledge of the state and federal Unemployment Insurance laws has been invaluable to Texas employers. He has worked with TWC commissioners to develop a model for other states to consider as a best practice in outreach and service to employers. Mr. Simmons' dedication to managing and maintaining the resources provided to businesses in Texas is fundamental to the success of the Texas Workforce Commission. He has worked tirelessly to respond to employer questions through the employer hotline and provides guidance on employment matters. He has conducted Texas Business Conferences, a series of employment law seminars for employers held each year throughout the state.

Mr. Simmons has provided valuable insight into employment law by authoring articles for the quarterly magazine Texas Business Today. The magazine is a free online informational newsletter covering issues and interests of Texas employers. Through this magazine, employers around the state write to Mr. Simmons with questions about employment law. Perhaps one of Mr. Simmons's most lasting legacies will be the Especially for Texas Employers manual. This unparalleled publication is an invaluable tool and is available to all Texas employers free of charge. Informed by his many years as a private sector employment law attorney and his policy work at the Commission, the manual provides a resource for decoding often confusing state and federal employment laws. Especially for Texas Employers provides detailed, easy-to-understand procedures for employers to follow in dealing with:

- Hiring Issues;
- Pay and Policy Issues;
- Work Separation Issues;
- Post-Employment Issues;
- Employment Law Litigation; and
- UC and Texas Payday Law Claims

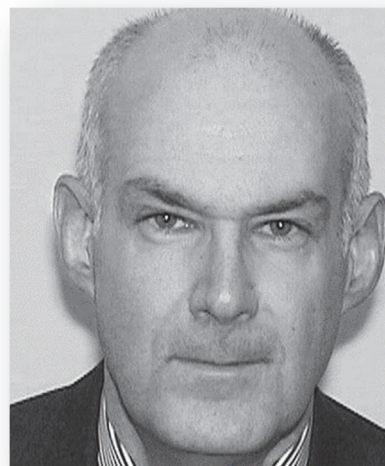

Texas employers find this publication indispensable for day-to-day business operations. As part of his dedication to supporting employers, Mr. Simmons developed a critical employment law interface for desktop computers and mobile device apps for employers in three different formats. He has been an integral part of the Employer Commissioners' extensive outreach to the employer community over the years. We are pleased to recognize William T. (Tommy) Simmons with the J. Eldred Hill, Jr. Award for his dedicated service to the employer community.

UI INTEGRITY AWARD: JOSEPH MUELLER

Joseph Mueller has dedicated more than a quarter century of his life to the Illinois Department of Employment Security and the unemployment insurance system. He is the state's foremost expert on the UI system and is looked upon as a fair arbiter by both the business community and organized labor.

Mr. Mueller is the Chief Legal Counsel to the Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES) - a role he has held for 27 years through Republican and Democratic administrations. As Chief Legal Counsel, he oversees the Office of Legal Counsel, the Board of Review, the Attorney General's Office Division which is embedded within the IDES, and the Division of Appeals. In the aggregate, Joe oversees 56 attorneys not including non-attorney support staff.

Illinois uses an "agreed bill process" under which business and labor meet every few years to negotiate changes to the Unemployment Insurance Act. The state has dealt with multi-billion deficits, bonding, and changes in the definition of misconduct, and other critical issues that impact employers and workers.

Mr. Mueller's service to the integrity of the UI system has expanded beyond Illinois to his work on various national committees for the National Governors' Association and the National Association of State Workforce Agencies. He played a key role in advocating for the state based UI system to amend federal law to assure that states had the authority to modify alternative base periods upon which to determine benefit eligibility.

Mr. Mueller for many years served as an expert presenter at the National UI Issues Conference hosted by the National Foundation for Unemployment Compensation and Workers' Compensation. He embodies all of the attributes that the award recognizes, and is truly deserving of this recognition. For the reasons noted above it is our pleasure to recognize Joseph Mueller with the UI Integrity Award.
