June 22, 2016

On behalf of the National Foundation for Unemployment Compensation and Workers' Compensation, permit me to extend a warm welcome to the 35th Annual National UI Issues Conference. You're in good company, and in the right place at the right time.

The Foundation Trustees would like to express our gratitude to UWC members and conference participants for their outstanding contributions in research, public policy advocacy, and promoting integrity and the ongoing health of the UI system:

- For the significant time and effort of the many experts with us here today, who put forth their analyses and recommendations on the key issues facing UI stakeholders;
- For the dedicated work of the UI Topics Task Force that develops the agenda each year; this year focusing on UI Integrity, Program Reform and Reemployment;
- For the presence and active participation from state and federal public officials.

As the only national association representing the interests of the business community on unemployment insurance (UI) issues, UWC serves a foundational role in protecting and enhancing the UI program. This conference has become a critical annual event in the ongoing evolution of the UI system, by promoting productive dialogue between the stakeholders, administrative best practices, integrity, reemployment and long term solvency of the program.

The Foundation is proud to serve as host, and is committed to continuing both the annual conference and our efforts to provide research and forums for dialogue in support of the UI program.

Again, welcome, and thank you for your interest and participation. Enjoy your time in Kansas City!

Many states have passed constitutional amendments and/or legislation addressing the use of marijuana for recreational and/or medical purposes, impacting employer policies concerning drug testing and the conditions of employment. Case law has emerged in a number of states to address the issue. Federal and state unemployment insurance laws have been developed to address whether the use of controlled substances or presence of controlled substances in the system of an employee may result in termination. Drug testing may also result in the disqualification of applicants from establishing benefit rights and/or denial of claimants who may not be able to work and available to work to claim weekly unemployment compensation. The workshop will review the current status of federal and state law and recent developments of note.

Work Search Requirements That Really Make a Difference

John Courtney, President, American Institute for Full Employment Innovations

Bruce Palzkill, Deputy Administrator, Wisconsin Department of Workforce Development, Division of Employment and Training

In many states, UI work search requirements are seen as ineffective by employers, claimants and even state staff often due to: 1) the effort and type of required work search activities, 2) the low number of claimant activities that are verified by the state and 3) the lack of enforcement for those who violate the requirements. In 2012 Congress enacted legislation requiring that claimants be actively seeking work as a condition of being paid unemployment compensation. There is a new movement of work search requirements and support that is both engaging and empowering claimants to return to work with better results. Learn about best practices and recent innovations that have been successful in reducing the duration of unemployment and increasing employment.

Shared Work and Short-Time Compensation Options for Employers

Amber Fink, Chief of Benefits, Missouri Division of Employment Security

Delores Rose, Shared Work Coordinator, Missouri Division of Employment Security

Ken McAninch, Director of Human Resources, Swisher Acquisition, Inc.

In 2012 Congress enacted specific authority under which states may provide the option of permitting employers to adopt work-sharing (short-time compensation) plans that enable employers in lieu of lay-offs to reduce the number of hours of work for individuals. The legislation also provided states with authority to provide for payment of pro-rata weekly unemployment compensation. The workshop will review the program in Missouri.

Salon A Brett Flachsbarth, Kansas Department of Labor
Lower Level Justin McFarland, Kansas Department of Labor
 Tracy King, Director of Taxation and Fiscal Affairs, Missouri Chamber of Commerce

State legislatures in many states have taken significant steps to reform state UI law and administration. In many cases state legislative proposals that have seemed to reasonably address benefit eligibility, use of trust fund dollars and/or computation of state tax rates have raised conformity issues with the Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code as interpreted by the US Department of Labor. The panel will review recent issues and describe the process of educating state legislatures and policy makers about federal issues and potential resolutions.

3:45 pm to 5:00 pm WIOA Impact on UI and New Wage Reporting Requirements
Salon C Tom Crowley, Unemployment Insurance Tax Chief, ADP
Lower Level Joe Mueller, Chief Legal Counsel, Illinois Department of Employment Security

The Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act of 2014 included provisions under which state unemployment insurance and employment services would be more specifically part of WIOA planning and program delivery. Wage information collected through the UI program from quarterly wage reports from employers was identified as a source of information to be used in broader WIOA program evaluation. The panel will discuss the WIOA provisions impacting unemployment insurance as well as the definition and use of wage information for evaluation and integrity of other programs.

Starlight Ballroom

Rich Siegel, President, Unemployment Tax Management Corporation
James Weant, Government Relations Manager, Equifax Workforce Solutions
Charles Ross, Deputy Director, Texas Workforce Commission

As part of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Extension Act of 2011 Congress enacted a provision which requires states to adopt state laws under which employers would be prohibited from receiving relief from charges to their accounts for erroneous payments of unemployment compensation if the employers or their representatives caused erroneous payment of unemployment compensation and had a pattern of failing to respond to requests for information from the state agency administering the state UI law. State laws differ and the administrative burden and impact on employers and their representatives has varied considerably. The panel will review the federal requirement as well as specific state laws and administrative practices which have presented challenges for employers and their representatives and suggest solutions for consideration.

9:00 am to 10:00 am Integrity Best Practices, Benefit Overpayment Recovery and Collection
Salon C
Lower Level
Dr. Jim Van Erden, Senior Policy Advisor, NASWA
Joy Forehand, New Mexico Department of Workforce Solutions
David Martin, On Point Technology

The integrity of the Federal/State UI system has come under increased scrutiny because of state unemployment trust fund insolvency, high erroneous payment rates, fraud and lack of priority and resources to address integrity. US DOL and individual states and employers have responded with improved systems to identify and avoid overpayments and fraud. The panel will review the latest innovations being developed and state best practices to address integrity, avoid erroneous payments and collect overpayments.

The solvency of the UI system continues to lag in many states, there continues to be insufficient resources to pay benefits in the event of another recession, and resources remain limited to assist claimants or employers in the public labor exchange. This round table will review the current status of the system, issues on the horizon, and solutions to solvency, and the matching of unemployed workers with employment.

J. Eldred Hill, Jr. Award

Nebraska Governor Pete Ricketts is truly deserving of the J. Eldred Hill, Jr., Award for excellence in the public policy arena in service to the employer community. Governor Ricketts has made transforming Nebraska's unemployment insurance system into a re-employment system a point of emphasis in his administration. With Nebraska having consistently one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation, accelerating workers' return to employment is a vital part of connecting job creators with talent across Nebraska.

The first in the nation program leverages cutting edge software that requires jobseekers filing for unemployment to register for work and post a searchable resume in NEworks, the Nebraska employment services system, before they can file an unemployment claim. Employers can then search posted resumes for a particular skill inventory, find resumes of individuals with the right experience, and/or utilize a Virtual Recruiter tool and proactively reach out to potential applicants.

NEworks provides program participants and all registered users with access to employment tools and resources, such as a resume builder, a messaging center to communicate with employers and workforce staff, free online learning resources, job search options including the virtual recruiter to identify personalized employment opportunities, and access to their individual employment plan.

The reemployment program is unique in that all jobseekers who receive unemployment benefits are required to enroll in an individualized reemployment plan to remain eligible for benefits unless they are only on temporary layoff from their regular employer. Department of Labor staff help program participants identify goals and objectives and determine the appropriate combination of services for the participant to meet their employment goals. These plans are designed to help engage the individuals and provide them with a clear understanding of where they are going in terms of finding new employment.

Governor Ricketts takes every opportunity to promote the reemployment program. He tirelessly promotes the program as he speaks throughout the state and recognized one of its participants during his State of the State address. The Governor even made time in his schedule to appear in a video for the program's orientation session. It is remarkable that a Governor would take such a personal interest in the development and implementation of a state system that makes a strong connection between all unemployed workers and reemployment. Employers and unemployed workers in Nebraska have benefitted from Governor Ricketts' leadership, and it is our honor to recognize Governor Ricketts with the J. Eldred Hill, Jr. Award for excellence in public policy and service to the employer community.

J. Eldred Hill, Jr. Award

Indiana State Representative Dan Leonard has served Indiana as a leader in addressing Unemployment Insurance Legislation in the challenging times since the Great Recession. Indiana was one of the states that were most impacted by the recession.

Representative Leonard has been the driving legislative force behind major changes in Indiana's Unemployment Compensation Act. His efforts have resulted in a total change in the funding mechanisms, coupled with the enactment of additional qualification and eligibility controls, which have resulted in Indiana recovering from a $2 billion trust fund deficit to a positive balance with projections indicating fund adequacy within the next two years.

In 2009, Indiana enacted a recovery bill with major tax increases during the depths of the trust fund deficit. The following year, Rep. Leonard authored legislation which resulted in an additional 10-year savings of $3.9 billion for employers.

In 2015, Rep. Leonard worked out an early repayment of Indiana's remaining trust fund debt, saving Hoosier employers $397 million by extinguishing the impact of the loss of FUTA offset without the need to enact legislation.

Dan Leonard is a small business owner who pays the UI tax. He understands the subject and the legislative process. He quietly influences outcomes time after time. His example is one worth following nationally. He is calmly committed to improvement of the Indiana UI Act and Indiana's economic success. Rep. Dan Leonard's leadership has brought Indiana from disaster to being on the brink of complete recovery, and he sets the stage for future improvement.

Indiana would not have found its way through the minefield of insolvency without Dan Leonard's leadership and ability to craft specific legislation. Neither would Indiana be on the threshold of returning its UI trust fund to solvency without Rep. Leonard's insistence. The Indiana business community and its legislature look to Dan Leonard to handle UI issues, and he does so effectively and efficiently.

We are pleased to recognize Representative Dan Leonard with the J. Eldred Hill Award for excellence in public policy and service to the employer community.

UI Integrity Award

Over 25 years ago Mike Lorsbach left the Illinois Department of Employment Security to start On Point Technology. Starting up a company to address UI Integrity issues was difficult, but Mike recognized the need for new solutions to detect fraud and to prevent fraud. Over the years the mission of the company and his determination have been constant, to provide the United States Unemployment Insurance Community with the highest quality, most effective technology services and software applications.

Mike's accomplishments in his 25 years of service to the UI community include:

- Technology solutions to stop fraud and collect past due debt in 21 State Workforce Agencies (SWA). On Point has a 100% success rate in deployment of those systems.
- Testimony on UI integrity issues before Congress.
- Development of a solution to prevent identity theft, fictitious employer and third party organized fraud schemes. In one state alone in 2015, these solutions prevented over $50 million in payments that would otherwise be directly charged to employers and the state trust fund.
- Establishing On Point Technology as a leading solution provider to UI agencies (per a 2015 survey of SWAs published by NASWA and the Integrity Center of Excellence).
- The development of the online real-time GUIDE benefit payment system, with an unbroken record of more than 16 years having never missed a night's processing and payment of benefits.
- Development of products which have, over the length of Mike's career in UI, recaptured over $4 billion in improper payments for state agencies, saving employers large amounts in direct charges and pooled costs.
- Support for UWC in the development of policy and sponsoring the National UI Issues conference hosted by UWC's National Foundation for Unemployment Compensation and Workers' Compensation.

Mike has been a national leader for UI Integrity for decades, and it is only fitting that we recognize him with the UI Integrity Award.

Father Becker Award

Dr. James Van Erden has had a profound positive impact on the Federal/State Unemployment Insurance System as a researcher, in policy development and in UI program administration. His career spans economic expansions and recessions over decades.

Jim has served as a Trustee of the National Foundation for Unemployment Compensation and Workers' Compensation for more than 20 years. He is the go-to expert who develops and provides training about unemployment insurance in a number of settings, including UI Issues conferences.

He has dedicated his career to the improvement of the workforce system. Jim's public service began after he received his Ph.D. from the University of Utah and taught economics at Weber State College. From 1975 to 1987, Jim served as an Economist, Actuary and Chief Actuary for the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) in the Office of Unemployment Insurance. Jim's contributions during this time included developing the national UI Quality Control System and the first computerized simulation models to provide estimates for UI program data.

Jim has worked with the National Association of State Workforce Agencies as Senior Policy Advisor since 2011 where he has led major projects and research on UI and workforce programs. He is the lead behind NASWA research that is used by UWC, Congress, the Department of Labor, and state leaders. He has been the main force behind the Integrity Center of Excellence.

Jim's work with NASWA on an annual report on the state supplementation of administrative funding for UI and an annual state survey reviewing UI taxes provides everyone in the field with invaluable information.

Dr. Van Erden's contribution to scholarship and research for the Unemployment Insurance system place him among the most profound contributors to research and policy development in the history of the UI program.

We are pleased to have the opportunity to recognize Dr. James Van Erden with the Father Becker Award for his major contributions to UI Research.
